

FADE IN:

INT. WALMART TYPE STORE

Scene opens with a man and woman standing in front of the school supply section. Camera fades in over student's shoulder seeing the two adults searching through rows of packages of pencils.

MAN Seriously?

WOMAN
(in a nearby row of pencils)
Seriously...

MAN
(getting a little aggravated)
Everyone needs number two pencils

Camera switches to look at student just shaking his head in disbelief. His eyes gaze to the left where he quickly picks up a package of the correct pencils.

A smirk develops on his face and he quickly races out of view.

Camera returns to the MAN and WOMAN.

MAN
There are, like, 400 Number 2.5
pencils here.

WOMAN
There's a reason there's 400 of these darn things. No one uses them

Student sweeps in front of the camera with a half full cart of supplies.

MAN
Remember when life was a little simpler and it was just about crayons?

WOMAN
And finger paint. You just dipped your hand into some color and went nuts.

WOMAN acts out sweeping motion with her hand. Also acts as if she's flinging paint at a piece of paper on the ground.

Student sweeps in from the opposite side of the screen with an even bigger number of items in his cart.

WOMAN

Now it's all about graphic calculators that can also translate German

MAN

(continuing to dig through rows of pencils)
And someone has to explain to me what this Evernote thing is all about.

Scene shifts to a big circular aisle display/container of pencils. The WOMAN is in the background kneeling down. The MAN has somehow dug deep into the display. You can only see his legs. The STUDENT approaches.

STUDENT

Find them yet?

WOMAN

(Pops up into screen. Hair is all disheveled. Somewhat annoyed with the question)
Do you know how hard...

WOMAN realizes that the student has already found the pencils along with everything else on the list.

WOMAN

Oh...

STUDENT gives a smile to the camera. In the background you still see the MAN buried in this display. His hand shoots up with a package of Number Two pencils in his hand.

MAN

Found them!

Infinity symbol graphic fades into screen.

V.O.

Infinite possibilities without the embarrassing parents.

FADE OUT